

He has been serving as an intelligence officer from the first days of the Patriotic war. He skilfully and efficiently executed his missions. In the combat operations on the approaches to town Märkisch Friedland, he utilised organised and well thought through combat raids and managed to expose order of battle and the system of defence of the enemy 163 Infantry Division (324 and 307 Infantry Regiments). In the battles on the sector Virchow - Groß Sabin, by organising well the system reconnaissance and observation, he determined the enemy's unit rotation schedule, which he confirmed by capturing a control prisoner 2 hours after the enemy relocated the units.

